HELLO! From Fr Marty

Loving God, grant once more to men and women
a simple childlike faith.
Forgetting colour and creed
And seeing only the heart's deep need...
For faith alone can save our soul
and lead us to a higher goal,
for there will be one unfailing course-
we win by faith and not by force.
Helen Steiner Rice

We continue to welcome you back to church!!!

One of my great spiritual writers is Ronald Rolheiser and he is very insightful. Here is a reflection from him today.

Work can be a distraction and an escape, both from God and family. It can be a rationalization against entering into the deeper things. If we too easily take our self-worth from our work so that we feel good about ourselves only when we are achieving something and are anxious always that, deep down, outside of our work and our achievements, we have little to offer. So we work to try to prove ourselves and our work becomes something we can't quit doing because our entire sense of self-worth is tied up with it.

Work can be an excuse to avoid the deeper things, but it is also the deep, natural form of contemplation that God gives to us as humans.

We spend most of our waking lives working. That should tell us something, namely, that work must be the major avenue through which God wants us to journey towards the deeper things. Given the way we are built, and the way life is shaped, we aren't expected to consciously think about God most of our waking moments.

God is the ground of our being, as well as the ground of our work and our relationships. In God "we live and move and have our being." We know God not just in our conscious awareness and in prayer, but also in a deep inchoate way, by participating with God in building this world – by growing things, building things, carving things, creating things, cleaning things, painting things, writing things, raising children, nursing bodies, teaching others, consoling others, humouring others, struggling with others, and loving others.

Work, like prayer, is a privileged way to get to know God because, when we do, we are toiling in partnership with God. <http://ronrolheiser.com/the-sacredness-of-work/#.YS6qFi0Rr-Z>
